

INDUTO

Installation manual

~ 3 minutes

Open the link <http://induto.com>

Click the Add to Slack button

Add to Slack

IndutoVideo would like access to your Slack team

Select your team

Your Team #1

Your Team #2

Sign in to another team

Select the team you want to start using IndutoVideo

IndutoVideo would like access to team #1

This will allow IndutoVideo to:

Confirm your identity on team #1

Change teams

Add commands to team #1

Show more

View email addresses of people on your team

Show more

 Access your team's profile information

Show more

Please only share your team's private information with apps that you have reviewed and trust.

Authorize

Cancel

Confirm IndutoVideo permissions
by clicking

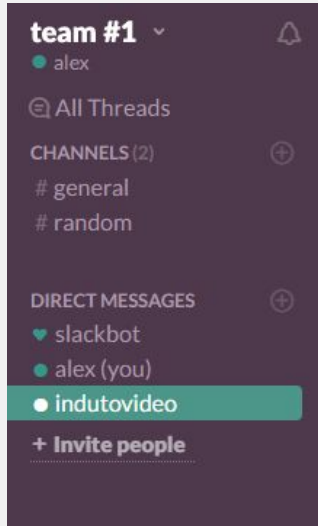

Authorize

Induto requests only the necessary permissions for it's proper work.

We recommend you to create a new channel #standup and add all the members of your team that will participate in the daily Induto stand-ups.

Type the command /invite @indutovideo, to add our bot in your channel. Optionally, you can use any existing channel as well, or even add IndutoVideo bot to multiple channels.

In the menu on the left side of the screen the indutovideo user will appear. This is our bot.

Send Go as a private message to the bot, and it will reply you with a link to new daily video recording.

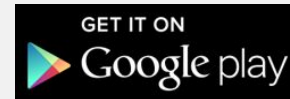

Our bot knows some other commands, that could be useful for you as well. Type Help, and it will bring up the list of possible commands.

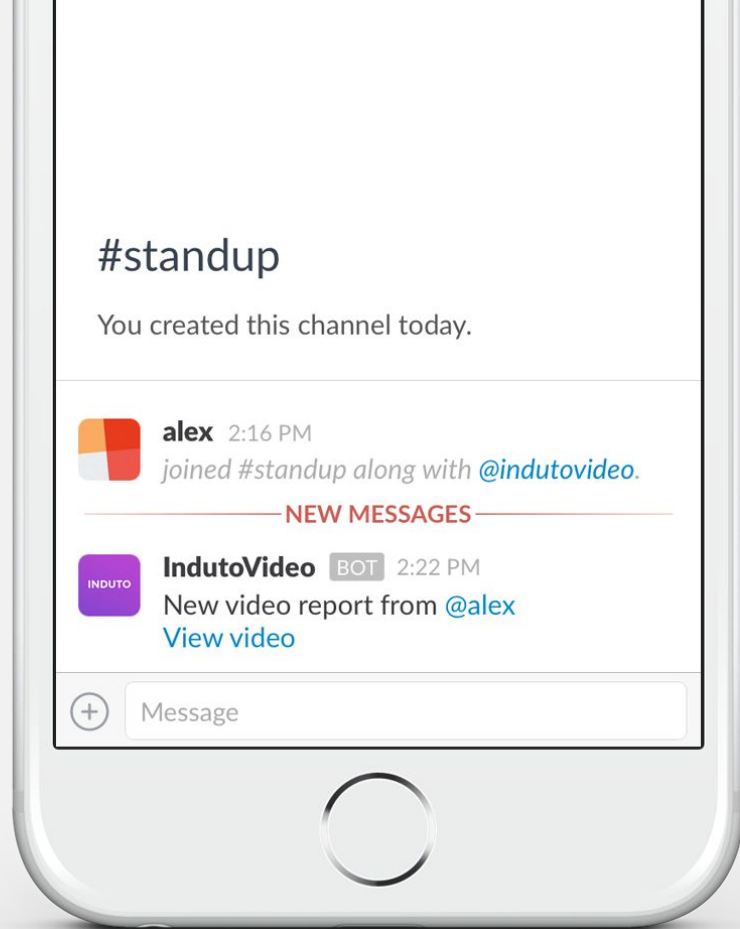

We also have a special mobile apps for recording video for iOS and Android devices.

Open Slack on your mobile device, send Go to Indutovideo and tap the link that appears. Induto mobile app will launch automatically and will suggest you to start capture new video.

By the way, next time you can record your daily video right from the app, without bot and Slask. The result will be just the same.

Right after one of your team members records his daily video via Slack, the bot will notify others in #standup channel.

Click View video to check out this video.

Messages with the view-link are just typical Slack messages. So you can equally work with them from Slack mobile, PC, Mac apps or web browser.